VETERAN'S MEMORIAL BUILDING TO UNITE WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP

Building Upon Land Donated By J. C. Shinn Presages Greater Growth of Communities

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP is going to have a back-bone! A live, sturdy, dependable back-bone which is going to make all the members of the body related to each other and from now on instead of each hand working for just its own fingers and each foot working for just its own toes, they're all going to work for the whole entity, the prime unit of which is the back-bone.

All of which is our feeble way of saying that now that the new Veterans' Memorial Building is to be an actual fact within the very near future, it's going to be easier for Washington Township to realize that in unity lies strength and that divided we stagnate and united we develop into one of the up-and-coming communities of the whole Sun Kissed state of California—not excepting Los Angeles!

The real episode that drew forth all his burst of eloquence was a meeting of the building committee of the Washington Post American Legion at the home of the chairman, E. Dixon Bristow, Friday evening.

Those present were: Mr. Bristow, R. A. Griffin, of Irvington; D. F. Gatchell, of Centerville; Frank Veit, adjutant, of Newark; Commander John Dutra of Newark; Ed Matheson of Oakland; Roland Bendel of Decoto; and Supervisor Ralph Richmond.

"This is going to be the center of the life of Washington Township," stated Mr. Bristow and commenting upon the plans outlined by the committee. "In all our discussions we have borne in mind that we must have a building suited to the many and varied activities of the whole township. We have tried not to plan for the present but for the future, and for a future that we believe will see Washington Township one of the most progressive communities in Alameda County."

The committee will confer with County Architect Myers this week and then a completed blue-print, o.k'd and ready for use will be available, actual construction to begin in the spring and probably all sorts of celebrations and "earth-breakings" and corner stone layings, etc., with especial thanks to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Shinn who donated the beautiful lot on Second street where the building is to be erected.

Some of the features asked for by the building committee for the $10,000 Veterans' Memorial Building include an auditorium which will seat a minimum of 600. The floor will be suitable for dancing and the seats folding chairs. There is to be an 18 by 20 foot stage, large enough for any amateur theatrical organization the township wishes to produce.

There will be a ladies' club room and adjoining dressing room; a men's dressing room and club room connected with sliding doors to the Legion Lodge room. There will be a fully-equipped kitchen and in the basement a furnace. Five thousand dollars has been appropriated for the furnishings.

Now can you imagine what next year's armistice day celebration will be—and where—and how?

WILLIAM SMITH, 74 PASSES AT NILES

Deceased Helped to Start Graham Foundry At Newark

William Smith, 74, resident of Niles for the past eight years and in Washington township forty years, died Sunday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Fred Mitte, in Niles. He was a native of Canada and during the 40 years he was a resident of this district was one of the out-standing and worthwhile citizens of the township. He helped the late James Graham, his brother-in-law, establish the Graham Foundry in Newark and was actively interested in the business until his retirement eight years ago.

The unusually large number of floral pieces sent to his relatives testified to the wide-spread popularity of "Uncle Bill" as he was affectionately called by his host of friends. As a citizen who contributed to the growth of the township and as a friend always ready to help every worthy cause his passing was another reminder that the most worthwhile monument a man can leave behind him, after all, is the memory of a

COMMERCE BODY HEARS ADDRESS BY F. V. JONES

"Americanism Demands That Ali Be For Hoover Now"

F. V. Jones gave the Chamber of Commerce a talk at their usual Tuesday meeting on the recent election. Starting out with one of Al Smith's phrases, "But remember above everything else that you are Americans," he gave a truly one hundred per cent "democratic speech," urging that the government exists for the people and that if we are going to trust in any existing form of government we must abide by the decision of the people in a presidential election. Every loyal American must uphold the decision of the majority even if their principles and ideas differ. Even William G. Blaine, who was a defeated candidate for the presidency, though he polled the largest popular vote, was a big enough man to say that he thought every thing was all right—a sporting thing for a man to say who never rose from his bed due

Washington's 1879 Thanksgiving Proclamation Prayed For Peace And Advancement of Sciences

(November 29, having been declared Thanksgiving Day for 1928, we began looking around for Thanksgiving "copy" and found this proclamation made by George Washington in 1789, in which he brays for "international peace" and "the progress of science among all nations.")

"WHEREAS, it is the duty of all nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey His will, to be grateful for His benefits, and humbly to implore His protection and favor;
Now, therefore, I do recommend and assign Thursday, the 26th day of November next, to be devoted by the people of these States to the service of the great and glorious Being who is the beneficent author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be; that we may then unite in rendering unto Him our sincere and humble thanks for His kind care and protection of the people of this country; for the civil and religious liberty with which we are blessed, and the means we have of acquiring and diffusing useful knowledge; and, in general, for all of the great and various favors which He has been pleased to confer upon us.

"And also that we may then unite in most humbly offering our prayers and supplications to the great Lord and Ruler of Nations and beseech Him to pardon our national and other transgressions; to enable us all, whether in public or private stations, to perform our several duties properly and punctually; to render our Nation a blessing to all the people by constantly being a Government of wise, just, and constitutional laws; to protect and guide all sovereigns and nations, and to bless them with good government, peace, and concord; to promote the knowledge and practice of true religion and virtue; and to the increase of science among them and us; and generally, to grant unto all mankind such a degree of temporal prosperity as He alone knows to be best.

"Given under my hand, at the city of New York, the 3rd day of October, A. D. 1789.
GEO. WASHINGTON."

EDITORS MEET.
THE CALIFORNIA Press Association had a very successful business meeting at San Francisco last Friday and Saturday. While the meeting was not as largely attended as its importance warranted, nevertheless a great good was accomplished by the exchange of opinions and the diffusing of certain knowledge possessed by the few among the many as it affected practice and newspaper legislation.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of the meeting was the discussion of pending legislation that affects the newspaper business. Out of eleven hundred bills introduced in the last session of the state legislature, 123 were intimately related to the publishing business and

Six New Extinguishers Installed In

As Part of Department Program.

Six chemical fire extinguishers have been installed in the Newark Grammar school, work being done by Louise Ruschin of the Fire Department.

Chief Ruschin also instructed the school children in the use of the apparatus.

The extensive educational campaign which has been carried on by the fire department of the Newark district, and the cooperation of the citizens, are the two factors responsible for the fact that the Newark fire department has not been called out on a fire in the district, in the

Editorial Comment

AND THEY ASK FOR INFORMATION!

NOW THAT SMOKE and odor of gunpowder have cleared from Main street and Kagle is waiting trial on the charge of assault with deadly weapon and shooting up the town of Niles, and the police forces have retired to their lairs in Centerville, Pleasanton and Oakland, we may well consider dispassionately our splendidly "isolated" condition as an unincorporated community.

The people who are opposing incorporation should, indeed, be proud of the town—it is their kind of a town! A man becomes angry with his former friends at a party and procures a gun; runs up and down Main street shooting spitefully at windows and faces. Keeps this up for two hours or more and then assistance arrives from Pleasanton and other neighboring towns. From two in the morning until eight the hallaballoo lasts. No one dares venture from his home. Profane language ladens the air, and shocks the ears of non-combatants.

Yet this is what those who ask more delay on incorporation must want, for this could not have occurred—would not have occurred—in a municipality functioning under incorporation with a police force available to nip such an outburst of outlawry in its incipency.

But this is but one instance. One can hardly turn his back before sneak thieves carry away his possessions. The Register had a battery taken out of its car in its own yard. The next evening the tools were gone. A man in the early evening went into his apartment located in the heart of the business district for two minutes and when he came back to his car, where he had left a valued musical instrument, found it gone. Was there anyone interested in these depredations?

There was none!

We have improper and inadequate street lights. Garbage collection is spasmodic and uncertain. The streets are dirty. Every man is a law unto himself.

Progress moves on about us. Hayward is growing by leaps and bounds. Capital is seeking investment; manufacturers locations. They come to Niles asking information, drawn by our superior railway and highway advantages. Then they learn there is no law in the town, no vested authority here, and move on. The town stands still. Some complain that business is poor. Why shouldn't it be, with plenty of so-called "leading citizens" opposing openly and worse yet, by subterfuge, the one thing that will start this town ahead—incorporation.

Come, citizens who still have vision and courage enough to fight—let us put this policy across—NOW! Not next year, or ten years hence, but NOW!

Why the delay?

More information? Rot!

The writer has looked up the files of the Register and finds that four years ago the Chamber of Commerce was talking, talking, talking incorporation. That was all—talking! It was discussed, cussed and buried.

Information? Body of Diana!

Information. How much information does the voter need, and how long does it take him to assimilate so dense a problem as self government? Indeed, the plea is an insult to the intelligence of every man and woman of the community. Indeed, they must think the people here dumb as the proverbial jackass, that within a half dozen years of education they cannot understand what incorporation means.

The Register believes in the regular man and woman of Niles; believes that he and she is sincerely desirous of seeing the town go ahead—that he is willing to pay for that desideratum, to the extent of which he can do so profitably.

Come, let us throw off the scales of darkness and inanity, and put on the armor of light. Let us clothe ourselves with the garb of progress and arm ourselves with the sword of action. Let us dispell the fumes of lethargy and procrastination, and for once—past twelve months, according to Chief Ruschin.

The crew has gone to answer calls of several grass fires but they have all been outside the district.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," says Chief Ruschin.

25% of our school children have defective eyesight—caused, chiefly, by poor lighting

What are you doing to correct this condition in your home?

Most homes have beautiful lamps, but they give poor light.

The best lighting is that which is nearest to ordinary daylight—sufficient light without glare, evenly distributed throughout the room.

The lamp illustrated here meets these requirements. It doesn't hurt the eyes. It improves the colors of furniture and draperies. Friends love to linger in the soft, complimentary light.

The lamps (both floor and table) have an opal glass reflector under the shade that diffuses the light. They come with a selection of silk and parchment shades. But you can never know how it improves vision and the appearance of the room until you try one. We'll gladly loan you one for a trial. Phone or drop us a card.

A modern ceiling unit is also illustrated here.

COMMUNITY XMAS TO BE HELD FOR NEEDY CHILDREN

Plans Made By Welfare Board at Monday's Meeting

Three new members have been added to the Welfare Board of Southern Alameda county and were present at the regular meeting held at Pleasanton Monday evening, F. Vernon Jones representing Niles.

New members are Mrs. Ruth L. Rogers of Hayward, M. D. Silva of Newark and William Burchell of Hayward.

Recently these and the remaining members: Judge Jacob Harder of Hayward, E. W. Burr of Hayward, Mrs. Claude Smallwood of Pleasanton, F. V. Jones of Niles, Dr. Paul Dolan and M. G. Callaghan of Livermore and E. Sween of Pleasanton—signed a petition asking for incorporation of the board. Papers of incorporation are expected to be in the hands of the members at an early date.

Plans for the annual Christmas celebration of needy children of the district were made at the Monday night meeting. A party will be held at the Country Club of Washington Township as last year and about 150 children are expected to attend. Arrangements are in the hands of Mrs. Ruth W. McCord, executive secretary of the Welfare Board and her assistants from the Hayward office. Miss Lena Schinnick, Mrs. F. V. Jones and others from this vicinity will assist in preparing the tree, presents, eats, etc., for the children.

Reports of the convention of social workers at Fresno recently were given by Mrs. McCord.

Red Cross Sets Goal of Five Million For 12th Roll Call

With its goal of 5,000,000 members, the 12th annual Red Cross Roll Call is in its main strides throughout the township this week, individuals and organizations doing their utmost to raise the $700 it is desired to put to the credit of the township.

Chairmen for the various communities as announced in last week's paper are: Mrs. Carrie Emerson, township chairman; Mrs. F. V. Jones, secretary; Decoto, Mrs. A. A. Amaral; Irvington, Mrs. R. Pond; Centerville, Mrs. C. Emerson; Newark, Campfire Girls and Miss Margaret Laudenschlager; Niles, Campfire Girls and Mrs. J. E. Townsend; Alvarado, Mrs. Walter Robie and Mrs. August May; Mission San Jose, Postmaster Rogers.

Nov. 11 to 29, inclusive are the dates set for this year's roll call. Every chapter is expected to conduct its enrollment within this period and not to continue enrollment beyond the period because of conflict with campaigns of other national organizations.

The Central Committee of the American Red Cross, at a meeting held October 3, 1927, a month before the opening of the Eleventh Roll Call, adopted a resolution asking the people for a five million membership for 1928. This resolution read as follows:

"The demands for Red Cross service have increased year by year, and are still increasing. This is true not only as regards disaster relief, the call for which has been unprecedented during the past year, but of all services. As long as the call continues, it must be met.

"It is a fundamental Red Cross principle that in all its services for humanity the Red Cross must continue to act in the name of all the people of the United States. To do so, it must look for an increased participation on the part of the people through membership.

"Because of the increased demands for service, the national and international program of the Red Cross is, despite the most rigid economy of operation and the ever-increasing use of full-time volunteers, requiring each year the expenditure of a sum considerably in excess of its annual income.

"The Central Committee of The American National Red Cross, therefore, requests the people of the United States to increase the national Red Cross membership to 5,000,000 members for the year 1928, and with complete confidence that the American people will rally to this call, urges every Chapter and Branch of the National organization to take such steps as will assure such membership increase."

The membership enrolled in the tenth roll call was over 2,000,000. The 11th roll call membership was 4,000,000. The 12th roll call expects to maintain the gain of the 11th and bring the mark to 5,000,000.

The central committee presents two compelling reasons for asking people for an increased membership.

The American Red Cross as the chartered agency of the people, to represent and to act for them in major humanitarian service, in war and in peace, requires a large and representative membership from among all the people. Individual membership by the people is an established Red Cross principle. With a rapidly increasing national population, there must be a corresponding increase in Red Cross membership, if the organization is to maintain its truly representative character.

Demands for Red Cross service have increased year by year since the world war and are still increasing. This is true of all the services of the organization. Such demands, if met, and the Red Cross must meet its obligations, require increased financial support. The organizations cannot stand still. It must go forward, or it will go backward. It cannot move forward in successful accomplishment, if its expenditure in spite of careful economy, exceeds its annual income.

There has not in the past few months, up on late June, occurred any one such unprecedented catastrophe as the Mississippi Valley floods of the spring and summer of 1927, but there literally has not been a day for the year past when the forces of the Red Cross have not been engaged on one of more disaster relief tasks. (This statement given out before the Florida hurricane of this past fall.)

The National organization has (not including relief in the hurricane area) in the past year, expended more than $600,000 of its own funds, entirely aside from the contributions restricted to specific disasters, for one service alone—disaster relief.

Western Pacific Wreck Sunday At Warm Springs Due to "Shimmy"

He who hesitates is lost and he who shimmies jumps the track! Witness the Western Pacific train wreck at Warm Springs which occurred Sunday morning at 3:30 o'clock about 100 yards this side of the Santa Clara county line, when 13 cars of a 47-car train, bound from Niles to San Jose, were derailed due to the "shimmying" of the seventh car from the front loaded with tractors.

When the car-load of tractors over-turned as a result of a swaying that increased with the motion of the train, the tracks were bent and caused the de-railment.

of three cars loaded with feed, sacked grain, and a tank car of gasoline, whose leakage constituted the principal loss; the other nine cars being empties. Schedule of Western Pacific trains over this line was tied up until late Sunday night as 500 yards of the track had to be re-built. No passenger trains operate over this line except the "Toonerville Trolley."

J. H. Leary, superintendent of the Western Pacific, stated that the track was in perfect condition prior to the wreck and that the train was going between 15 and 20 miles an hour. There were no injuries—not even a hobo aboard.

BEDDING NEEDED AT CHILDREN'S HOME

Real Comfort Can Be Added By Donation of Quilts or Blankets

Twenty-one members of the Guild Welfare Club spent the afternoon sewing at the home of Mrs. William Eberly Monday afternoon, the chief topic of discussion being the Christmas celebration for the Children's Home.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Ford, on Dec-3, instead of the regular meeting day as that date would be too near Christmas for convenience of members.

Mrs. A. A. Hatch, chairman of the clothes committee, reported that 55 garments had been sent out by her department during the past month, these being placed by Mrs. Ruth W. McCord, executive secretary of the Welfare Board.

Final reports from the recent whist party showed $80 receipts from that project.

The greatest need at the home at present is more bedding. Cold nights have demonstrated that more quilts and blankets are seriously needed and any persons wishing to donate same are asked to communicate with Mrs. A. A. Hatch of Niles. Articles will be called for if some members of the club is notified.

life spent in service. The last few months of his life were cheerfully and unselfishly spent though he was suffering from an incurable illness and his passing though bereaving loved ones was to him a release from pain. One of the last wishes he expressed was that he would either be better or "through" before next week in order that his illness might not interfere with certain events in which members of the family were to participate.

The five children who survive him are Mrs. Mitte, Mrs. Ruby Krelle and Mrs. Orbie Griffith, of San Anselmo; Mrs. Faye Dickie, of Fresno; Dr. W. Clyde Smith and Roy M. Smith, of Berkeley. He was a brother of Mrs. Mary A. Gregory and the late Mrs. Sarah Graham. Private funeral services were held at the Oakland crematorium at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Dr. H. Banking ideals that reflect the spirit of America

THE ENTIRE STRUCTURE of California's largest banking institution typifies the daring, constructive, pioneering spirit of America. This institution has dared to break away from the old fashioned, selfish, iron-bound traditions of banking. It is now internationally known as the outstanding progressive bank of the world. That Bank of Italy policies and methods have been sound and practical is evidenced by the large number of banks which are now following the trail blazed by this pioneering American banking institution.

To adhere as closely as possible to the idealism and practical human working principles of those three great Americans — Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt — is the plan and purpose of this banking institution.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Trees and Prosperity of Nation Are Linked

The economic structure upon which our nation is built is made of forest products, writes Charles Lathrop Pack in the Military Engineer. Just as wooden railroad ties marked the westward advance of civilization, so other products of the forests have kept pace with national growth, and made it possible. When we had to have more houses, down came the trees. We had to have more barns, schools and churches, down came the trees. We had to have farm implements, and wood for fuel, down came more trees. Coal was found and, strange as it may seem, there was a great demand for wood because it must be used in mining coal.

The annals of our country have been written across the pages of history because of trees, and the time has come to give thought to what the historian of the day will write about it 100 years from now. Every step of our onward march has been made possible because, and by means, of trees.

Worth Knowing When Winter Cold Comes!

Did you ever hear of a five-hour remedy for colds? There is one, and it really does bring you out of it completely. Even if it's gripe, this remedy works, only takes longer. Pape's Cold Compound is in tablet form. Pleasant-tasting, but it surely has the "authority!"—Adv.

Hot at Greenland Ranch. In Death valley there is an artificial oasis, produced by irrigation. It is called Furnace Creek ranch, says Nature Magazine. Formerly it was called Greenland ranch, and the little government weather station established here some years ago is still known under the old name. On July 10, 1913, the official thermometer at Greenland ranch registered a shade temperature of 134 degrees Fahrenheit.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

Mary Graham Bonner

MADGE'S SLED

She had gone to bed and it was the night before her birthday.

Her name was Madge, and the thing she wanted more than anything else was a sled.

She must have spoken aloud in her sleep—or else the Fairies could hear her thoughts speaking to them in their fairy language, for Fairy Ybab said:

"What would you like to have come true, little girl?"

"Your Wishes Shall Be Granted," Fairy Ybab's voice was so musical and soft that Madge tried to take hold of her to give her a kiss and to stroke her wonderful, soft black hair.

But Fairy Ybab was flying overhead and she only stopped now and then to land on the edge of the bed.

"I wish that we would have ice and snow and that I could have a sled," said Madge.

"And why can't you?" asked the Fairy Ybab.

"Because my mother and daddy are not very rich, and a sled is quite a big, big present."

"I know they want to give me one, for tomorrow is my birthday, but I don't believe I will get it."

"Well," laughed the Fairy Ybab, "and so all you want is a sled and snow and ice. Dear, dear me."

"I know," said Madge, "that I want a great deal."

"Oh, no," said Ybab, "I was not thinking that. I was thinking how little you really wanted."

"It will be so easy for me to grant your wish."

"Can I grant wishes?" called out the Fairy Ybab, and all the other Fairies playing in the background laughed and said in their silvery voices:

"She is a Fairy and she has a magic wand," they cried, "and she can grant many favors and make many wishes come true."

"Then I wish—" said Madge again. "Oh, yes," said Ybab, "I know your wishes. Your wishes shall be granted. But I must be off now. There are several people to be seen."

"I must tell the toyshop man to come up to see your daddy early, early tomorrow morning and to make the sled a little cheaper."

"I think the toy man will do that when I ask it of him."

"Dear me, how many times I have made him come down in his prices—quite dreadful of me!" And Ybab smiled.

"I am afraid," she continued, "that I don't help the toyshop man become very rich."

"But, ah, he is happy, and how much better that is than anything in the world."

"And must you see anyone else?" asked Madge.

"Yes, indeed," said Fairy Ybab. "There is my old friend, King Snow, who must be seen, and the little Icicle children."

"I'd almost forgotten, too, the Ice Fairies, who make the ponds freeze."

"Good-by, I must be off."

With a wave of her wand Fairy Ybab had gone.

"Many happy returns," said Madge's mother, as she stood over her bed in the morning, "and here is the sled!"

"It has snowed during the night, and everything is snowy and icy."

"And what do you suppose the name of Madge's sled was?"

It was called the Fairy Messenger, and oh, how Madge loved it—not only on her birthday but on many, many, many other happy days, too.

Arrow in Stork's Neck

At Frankfurt-on-the-Oder in eastern Germany one of a pair of storks, which had nested many years at the top of a 60-foot chimney, was seen to have an arrow stuck through its body near the neck. With the aid of fire brigade ladders and a net the poor thing was captured, and the arrow was taken out, and the wound tended before the bird was released to resume its nesting.

A German would not dream of shooting at a stork, for storks are supposed to bring luck; and the arrow was proved to be of the kind used by African tribesmen. The stork had evidently flown all the way from Africa to Germany.

A Proclamation

IT IS RIGHT that we who are alive
And masterful and free
With hearts to hope and health to strive
And blessed with eyes to see,
Should sometimes, pausing in the stress,
Acknowledge thankfulness—

FOR ALL the mornings that are fair
And all the kindly winds that blow,
For all the cheerful faces where
The busy thousands come and go,
For all the warm and peaceful nooks
In which the weary may recline;
For friendly looks and worthy books,
For faith that may be yours and mine—

FOR EVERY glad and pleasing song,
For every pasture that is green,
For all the streams that wind along
Where ripples flash and willows lean;
For all the triumphs we have gained,
For all the errors left behind,
For all the tasks that have remained
For hopeful, eager men to find—

FOR EVERY gladdened mother's prayers,
For all the bliss that lovers claim;
For every charm that beauty wears,
For pride, for honor, and for fame;
For morning and the hope it brings,
For every cheerful, friendly face;
For skill to do the useful things,
For night, with each star in its place.

IT IS RIGHT that we who may engage
In triumphs yet to be,
Who, in the world's sublimest age,
Are masterful and free,
Should sometimes, in the strife and stress,
Acknowledge thankfulness.

Feast Ever Part of the Spirit of Day

The modern Thanksgiving day observance is so broad in its contrast with pioneer days that there is a smile in the comparison. Comfort, luxury, organization mark the celebration of the event today. The Twentieth century farmer produces his crops under ideal conditions. He has no treaties of peace to make with Indians in order to plant and cultivate his crops. In the diary of an old New Englander is this line: "An Indian promise is no more than to have a pig by the tail," a sentiment born of difficulties with the savages. The Pilgrim fathers planted corn with seed in one hand and a rifle in the other.

Governor Wallace issued the first official Thanksgiving proclamation for Indiana, fixing the day for Thursday, November 28, 1893. No doubt there previously had been a general observance of the harvest's bounties among the pioneers of the state, but that was promoted by the churches, not by official designation of the day by the governor. President Lincoln officially restored the day in 1863, the first national act of the kind since the administration of President Madison. It is pleasant to picture how the Hoosier pioneers observed the day unofficially by "harvest home" festivals in the churches, when prayer and thanksgiving were the program of the worshippers.

Early Indianapolis was built along White river. Farms were cultivated in the surrounding territory, and a good harvest was the basis for rejoicing. Sometimes there was feasting, the original idea of George Washington not having lost its meaning to the pioneer. Men went forth to the woods to bring in wild turkeys and other game that was worthy of being the "piece de resistance" of a harvest festival dinner.

Evolution of Today's Turkey.

Families gathered around tables piled high with wild turkey, venison, squirrel and other meats of the forest. Apples and the native nuts were spread in plenty over the house, and the men, if they were so inclined—and they usually were—took a nip from friendly jugs just to add enthusiasm to the day. Sweet cider had a habit of becoming jubilantly hard about the middle or last of November, and this, too, played a part in the merrymaking.

Sonnet for the Day

O, thankful, I, for food on table board,
For sight of linen falling to the floor;
O, thankful, I, and humble to a Lord
A little time forgotten, sought once more.
O, thankful, I, that I have grown so tall
As to look on the world with simple eye.
That there is never day of year, I call
Not unto some far Being toward the sky.
And thankful am I for the gift of song,
Uncertain though it be as candle shine
And small as light of taper. Praise it long,
I know, and singing it, it shall be mine.
Thankful, thankful, that this hour could be Set aside for thankfulness in me.
—David Sator in Chicago Tribune.

When the wild turkey became extinct, the domestic bird, now a national favorite in Thanksgiving feasts, found way to popularity. There is an impression that America imported the present species of turkey from Europe, but the fact is just the reverse. American turkeys were introduced first in Spain three centuries ago, and through processes of cross-breeding the present delight of America's Thanksgiving day was evolved.

Poultry raisers express the fear that unless the government experts at Washington, who are working on the problem, discover methods whereby domestic turkeys may be fortified against disease and proneness to die under adverse weather conditions, it will not be many years before turkeys will go the way of the dodo bird—become extinct. Farmwives, in many parts of the country, do not attempt to raise turkeys because of the prevalence or disease known as blackhead and limberneck. The government's experts are exerting every effort to find cures for these diseases, but complete success has not yet been attained, although a few remedies have been found fairly successful. Heavy rains are hard on baby turkeys, which drown easily.

Turkey Supply Falling Off.

The result of these failures in turkey-raising has been a greatly diminished production, and, of course, prices soar in consequence. Southern Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee, in the last several years, have been showing increased production in turkeys. Most of the birds that find way to the metropolitan markets are from Texas and other Southwestern states, where the climate is right and there is plenty of room for range. New England states, original home of the American turkey, do not now produce enough birds to supply the demand for the metropolitan markets, although every hotel in New York, Boston and Philadelphia announces on the bill of fare, "Vermonter turkey," or "Rhode Island turkey." The storage houses are filled with dressed turkeys that have journeyed out of the West, south and Southwest to make Thanksgiving a day of feasting for metropolitan epicures.

America's Thanksgiving dinner has, in the last twenty years, become a sort of international banquet. The turkey is a United States institution, but one finds on the table now Irish potatoes, a la Hollandaise, or Spanish style; vegetables from the Imperial valley of Mexico, figs from Egypt, nuts and coffee from Brazil, almonds from Italy, grapefruit from Porto Rico, French pastry and perhaps Turkish cigarettes.

Thanksgiving day amusements have undergone as great changes as the bill of fare. The observance, as originally planned by the forefathers, called for attendance at church and an outpouring of gratitude for health and bountiful harvests. The Puritans held it to be a day of Sabbathlike sanctity. As the years rolled on, the element of rejoicing entered into the spirit of the day, and, after church in the forenoon and a feast at noon, the men engaged in lighthearted games and banter, while the women sat around the "settling" room and gossiped of affairs that held their interest. In the country communities there were games of horse-shoe pitching, hop-skip-and-jump, foot-races and wrestling matches. Men of the neighborhood vied with each other in these contests, which helped to make Thanksgiving day happy.

Thanksgiving Spirit Abides.

Changing years have brought changed customs, but the spirit of Thanksgiving still abides in the American heart, whatever the style of observance. In Indianapolis, as in other cities, scores of families are depending on the hotels and clubs to provide the Thanksgiving dinner, thus to ease the women of the household of the responsibilities. Hotel and club managers here say they are booked almost to capacity with table reservations calling for covers representing 10, 12, 15 and 20 persons. In other words, the family is going to "dine out" and let mother's Thanksgiving day be one of rejoicing, not of drudgery.

It would be impossible for all families to eat at hotels and clubs—mothers know that! You can't change a sentimental mother. The result is that, in thousands of instances, mother refuses to consider any other situation than that of having her children at home for Thanksgiving day dinner. Turkey may not be the crowning viand of the meal, for there still remain chicken, goose and duck to top the menu. Mother knows, too, of other morsels that are the delight of her children.

Fact is, folk, Thanksgiving day is just another Mothers' day!—Indianapolis News.

Show Your Gratitude Throughout the Year

A beautiful story of true gratitude is told of a little child living in a poverty-stricken home. The mother had leaned a door shutter up in one corner of her cabin so that her shivering little ones could shelter behind it from the icy wind. One of the children, creeping behind this poor shelter, said: "Mamma, aren't you sorry for the poor little children that haven't any door shutter to go behind?" In this child was exemplified the true sentiment of the gratitude expressed by the Pilgrim fathers.

Gratitude is the open door through which we enter into true peace and happiness, and this must find its rightful expression in unselfishness and consideration for others. What a different world it would be if the spirit of Thanksgiving day were to be demonstrated, not only on a special occasion but throughout every day of the year! Into the thought filled with gratitude, envy, malice, hatred and jealousy can find no entrance. Thus is not true gratitude a powerful factor in bringing peace and harmony to all mankind?—Exchange.

Thanksgiving

Joy in the heart, though there's frost on the ground,
Thanksgiving day is the day of good cheer—
Happiness, hopefulness, faith should abound,
All through the year!

Peace in the soul, though the red leaves have blown,

Lord, in the name of the mercies You've shown,
Smile down from above!

Phone Message Recorded.

The use of the telephone in giving orders and directions in industrial establishments has, in many cases, been discouraged, for, in case of mistake, it always leaves open a question of veracity and one which cannot well be settled if it is desirable to place the responsibility. This has been overcome recently by the invention of a wax disk recorder attached to the instrument, which makes a permanent record of all the conversations which take place.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger applied for work as a rider. Williamette Ann Warren—known to all as "Billie," is the owner of the ranch. The girl's father, Cal Warren, had been the original owner. The question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one. The newcomer is put to work. Cattle "rustlers" have been troubling the ranch owners. The new hand gives his name as Cal Harris. By his announcement in favor of "squatters" he incurs the enmity of a rider known as Morrow. The will made by Cal Warren stipulated that half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris, under certain conditions. The new arrival is the man, and he discloses the fact to Billie. The girl is suspicious. Slade, a ranchman with an unsavory reputation as a "bad man," visits Billie. He has long wanted to marry her, but she dislikes and fears him. Slade, endeavoring to embrace Billie is interrupted by Harris. Harris half jestingly proposes that the girl marry him and so settle the matter of the ranch ownership. The regular calf round-up is begun. While the riders are at their evening meal, far out on the range, six outsiders join them. Billie knows them to be "rustlers."

"Our families must have been real set on throwing us together," he observed. "I was cut off without a dime myself—unless I spent two full years on the Three Bar."

She was angry with herself for believing him sincere, for being convinced that he, too, as he had several times intimated, was tied in much the same fashion as herself. The explanation came to her in an illuminating flash. The elder Harris must have nursed a lifelong enmity against her father, who had believed him the most devoted friend on earth.

She had often heard the tale of how her parent had, in all friendliness, followed old Bill Harris step by step from Dodge City to the Platte, to old Fort Laramie and finally to the present Three Bar range. Perhaps the one so followed had felt that Cal Warren was but the hated symbol of the whole clan of squatters who had driven him from place to place and eventually forced him to relinquish his hope of seeing the Three Bar brand on a hundred thousand cows; that his friendliness had been simulated, his vindictiveness nursed and finally consummated by leaving his affairs in such fashion that his son must carry on the work his trickery had begun.

Harris resumed where he had broken off.

"And I'd have tossed it off, as I told you once, if the Three Bar girl had turned out to be any except you. You've had a tough problem to work out, girl," he said. "I sold out my little Box L outfit for more than it was worth—and figured to stop the leak at the Three Bar and put the old brand on its feet."

His calm assurance on this point exasperated the girl.

"How?" she demanded. "What can you do?" She pointed toward the six men near the wagon. "During the time you spent prowling the hills did you ever come across those men?"

"Not to put round with them," he confessed. "But I did cut their trail now and then. They're not the outfit that's going to be hardest to handle when the time arrives."

"What do you mean?" she asked. "No one has ever been able to handle them up to date."

"Did it ever strike you as queer that Slade could come into this country twelve years back, with nothing but a dog rope and a running iron, and be owning thirty thousand head today?"

"He has the knack to protect his own and increase," she said. "They're afraid of Slade."

The girl shook her head impatiently and looked across at the six men who ate her fare.

"Look at them," she flared. "Eating my food; and in a few nights they'll be hazing a bunch of Three Bar steers toward the Idaho line. Why doesn't some man that is a man kill that albinoid and all his whelps and rid the country of his breed? Even Slade lets them put up at his place."

"If they're pestering you I'll order them off," he said.

"And what effect would that have?" she inquired scornfully.

"The effect of causing them to climb their horses and amble off down the country," he returned. He sprawled on the grass, his head propped on one hand as he regarded them.

"They probably you'd better order them off," she suggested. "You have my permission. Now's your chance to make good the tordly brag of helping the Three Bar out of the hole." She instantly regretted having said it. A dozen times of late she had wondered if she were turning bitter and waspish. If she would ever again be the even-tempered Billie Warren with a good word and a smile for every one. Harris was as always, apparently undisturbed by her words. Far down the bottoms she could see a point of light which she knew for a white sign that read: "Squatter, don't let sun-down find you here." The man before her had defied these sinister warnings scattered about the range and publicly announced that he would put in hay on his filing, knowing that he was a marked man from the hour he turned the first furrow. Whatever his shortcomings, lack of courage was not one of them.

"I take that back," she said, referring to her words of a few moments before. Harris straightened to a sitting position in his surprise at this impulsive retraction, and as he smiled across at her she divined that this man, seemingly so impervious to her sarcasm, could be easily moved by a single kind word.

"Thanks, Billie," he said. "That was real white of you."

He rose and sauntered toward the wagon and Billie Warren felt a sudden clutch of fear as he halted before Harper and she realized that he had taken her words literally and intended ordering them off.

"I've been made temporary foreman of the Three Bar—just so the boss could try me out on that job for an hour or two," he remarked conversationally. "So I'm putting in a new rule that goes into effect right off. When you boys ride away, in a few minutes from now, you can tell folks that the grub line is closed as far as the Three Bar is concerned."

Lang took a half-step toward him, his face reflecting his gathering rage as his slow brain comprehended the fact that this speech was but another way of announcing that he and his men would find no welcome at the Three Bar from that moment on. Harper caught his arm and jerked him back. The albino was an old hand and could rightly read the signs.

"The gentleman was remarking to me," he said to Lang, "not you." He turned to Harris. "There's no law to make you feed any man," he said. "From now on we'll pay our way—as far as the Three Bar is concerned."

His tones were casual; only his pale eyes, fastened unblinkingly on Harris' face, betrayed his real feeling toward the man who, notwithstanding the roundabout nature of his announcement, had practically ordered him to stay away from the Three Bar for all time.

"But even in the face of that," he resumed, "we'll welcome you any time you happen to ride down our way."

Every man within earshot understood the threat that lay beneath the casual words.

"Then I'll likely drop in some time," Harris said. "If you'll send word where it is. And I'll bring fifty men along."

The albino motioned his men toward their horses and they mounted and rode off down the bottoms. Harris walked back and resumed his seat near the girl, who sat looking at him as if she could not believe what she had just witnessed.

"You see it was just as easy as I'd counted on," he said. "It'll be a considerable saving on food."

"But how did you know?" she asked. "Why is Harper afraid of you?"

"He's not," Harris said. "Not for a single second. But he's an old hand and has left a few places on the jump before he came out here."

"And he thinks you know it!" she guessed.

"He don't care what I know; it's what he knows himself—that the wild bunch is always roosting on the pawd can even when it appears like they're sitting pretty—that counts with him. You thought I was taking a fool chance of outgunning him. In reality I was taking almost an unfair advantage of him, providing he had the brains he must possess to have lived to his age."

She could find no ready-made answer to this surprising statement.

"Don't you know that the albino will kill you for that?" she asked.

"Not unless he can stage it as a personal quarrel," he said. "He'll never follow it up as coming out of what happened today by taking it out on me as temporary foreman of the Three Bar—for ordering him off. There's a good majority of folks that don't relish seeing Harper's bunch ride up—that feed them through policy. But whenever you make it plain to a man that he's compelled to do a thing whether he likes it or not it's ten to one he'll balk out of sheer human pride. If Harper kills the Three Bar foreman on the grounds that he refused to feed all his men—why then, right off, every foreman and owner within a hundred miles starts to resenting the possibility that maybe the albino feels the same way toward him. Harper knows that."

"But if your theory had been wrong?" she persisted. "What then?"

"Then," he said, "then there'd have been h—l and repeat. I wasn't just acting as me, a personal affair, but, as I look pains to remark aloud, as the foreman of the Three Bar. Every Three Bar man would have gone into action the second Harper made a move at me. You know that—and Harper knew it."

She realized the soundness of this statement. The one unalterable code of the country, a code that had been fostered till it eclipsed all others, decreed that a man should be loyal to the brand for which he rode. The whole fabric of the cow business was based on that one point.

"But now they'll work their deviltry all the stronger against the Three Bar," she predicted. "They could wreck us if they tried. You couldn't get a conviction in five years. Not a man would testify against one of Harper's outfit."

"Then we'll put on a fighting crew and hold them off," he said. "But that's not the layout that will be hardest to handle in the long run. Slade is the one real hard nut for the Three Bar to crack. He can work it a dozen different ways and you couldn't prove one of them on him to save your soul. He's one smooth hombre—Slade."

Harris rose and headed for his bed roll and the girl sought the shelter of her teepee for a rest. Her mind was busily going over the events of the day. She reflected that Cal Harris was at least possessed of self-confidence and that procrastination was certainly not to be numbered among his failings. It came to her that his interests for the present were identical with her own. As half-owner in the Three Bar it would be as much to his advantage as to her own to build it up. Waddle's warped legs prevented his acting as foreman on the job and it might be that the other man would find some way to prevent the leak that was sapping the life from the Three Bar. His half-ownership entitled him to the place. Billie Warren loved her brand and her personal distrust of Harris was submerged in the hope that his sharing the full responsibility with herself might be a step toward putting it back on the old-time plane of prosperity.

She fell asleep with the crooning voice of the night hawk drifting to her ears.

It seemed but a few fleeting moments before Waddle's voice roused her.

"Roll out!" he bawled. "Feet in the trough!"

There was instant activity, the jangle of belts and spurs and in five minutes every man was fully clothed and splashing at the creek. It was showing rose and gray in the east when the meal was finished.

When most of the men were mounted Billie urged Papoose over near Harris' horse.

"Do you know how to throw a circle?" she asked.

"After a fashion," he said. "I've bossed one or two in the past."

"Then we'd better be of," she suggested. "Since you're the Three Bar foreman it's for you to say when."

"I only pre-empted that job for ten minutes or so," he explained with evident embarrassment. "You surely didn't think I was trying to boost myself into the foreman's job for keeps?"

"No," she said. "But you're half-owner—and you can handle men. I'm giving you free rein to show what you can do."

Harris straightened in his saddle and motioned to the men.

"Let's go!" he ordered, and headed his horse for the left-hand flank of the valley. They ascended the first slopes, picked a long ridge and followed it to the crest of the low divide between that valley and the next. As they reached the head of the first draw that led back down into the valley Harris waved an arm.

"Carp," he called, and a middle-aged man named Carpenter, abbreviated to Carp, wheeled his horse from the group and headed down the draw.

A half-mile farther on they reached the head of another gulch.

"Hanson!" the new foreman called, and the man who reined for the Half-moon D dropped out. One man was detailed to work each draw and when some five miles up the divide there were but half the crew left. The foreman led the way to the opposite divide and doubled back, sending a man down every gulch.

Any Woman Can Look Stylish

By MAE MARTIN

Most stylish-looking women are just "good managers." They know simple ways to make last season's things conform to this season's styles.

Thousands of them have learned how easily they can transform a dress, or blouse, or coat by the quick magic of home tinting or dyeing. Anyone can do this successfully with true, fadeless Diamond Dyes. The "know-how" is in the dyes. They don't streak or spot like inferior dyes. New, fashionable tints appear like magic right over the out-of-style or faded colors. Only Diamond Dyes produce perfect results. Insist on them and save disappointment.

My new 64-page illustrated book, "Color Craft," gives hundreds of money-saving hints for renewing clothes and draperies. It's Free. Write for it now, to Mae Martin, Dept. E-143, Diamond Dyes, Burlington, Vermont.

World's Illiterates.

Dr. J. F. Abel, a specialist of the bureau of education, says that 62.5 per cent of all the world's inhabitants, despite the educational progress of the last two or three centuries, are still illiterate. Doctor Abel calculates that the world's population now is 1,820,000,000. Of these 455,000,000 are deducted on the ground that people under ten years of age are illiterate. This leaves 1,365,000,000 above the age of ten, of whom Doctor Abel finds that about 850,000,000 are illiterates.

Girl at the Top in Health Test

Millions of boys and girls all over the world, thousands of them right here in the West are being restored to health and strength by the purely vegetable tonic and laxative known as California Fig Syrup and endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Children need no urging to take it. They love its rich, fruity flavor. Nothing can compete with it as a gentle, but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It gives tone and strength to the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally, of their own accord. It stimulates the appetite, helps digestion.

A Kansas mother, Mrs. Dana Allgire, 610 Monroe St., Topeka, says: "Bonnie B. is absolutely the picture of health, now, with her rosy cheeks, bright eyes and plump but graceful little body and she stands at the top in every health test."

Much of the credit for her perfect condition is due to California Fig Syrup. We have used it since babyhood to keep her bowels active during colds or any children's ailments and she has always had an easy time with them. She always responds to its gentle urging and is quickly back to normal."

Ask your druggist for California Fig Syrup and look for the word "California" on the carton so you'll always get the genuine.

They Surely Have.

"Times have changed," said the first dad.

"I'll tell the world they have," replied the other; "just think of being able to ask your daughter for a light."

This is the age when readers don't read beyond the third chapter if they don't like the novel.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drug store has the genuine, prescription product.

More Highschools in Country Than in City

There are a greater number of high schools in the country than in the city, but those in the cities are larger and their numerical total of attendance is greater than that in the country schools, according to statistics of the Department of the Interior. Reports show 22.4 per cent, are urban high school and 77.6 per cent are rural, located in centers of 2,500 or less in population. But it is estimated that rural schools have only 10 per cent of the total high school enrollment.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

by
EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT the building of a city should be handled as carefully as any big business proposition and in a common-sense way.

THAT a city must have a healthy growth, for in this turmoil of modern business and development a city must stand up under stress and disappointment and always go forward slowly and surely.

THAT co-operation on the part of all must be had.

THAT those who enter into the fight for a bigger, busier city will discover that never before have they had presented to them a proposition of equal magnitude and attractiveness.

THAT all can materially benefit the home city if they begin right now to make the coming months ones of production and prosperity.

THAT it would be difficult to find one citizen who cannot in some manner help to increase the prosperity of all.

EVERYONE can, without detriment, inconvenience or expense, at least remember that the home city is their city and act accordingly to the end that harmony and prosperity may come.

if passed in a preponderance of cases would have crippled the usefulness of the press. Practically all of these bills aimed at curbing the independence of editors in expressing their honest convictions, or taking the teeth out of the legal publication law.

Dr. Ng Poon Chew, publisher of Chung Sai Yat Po, Chinese daily of San Francisco, delivered one of the most interesting addresses of the two-day session. A man of keen humor, he kept his auditors laughing and applauding his humorous sallies and sardonic wit—now aimed at members of his own race and then at the expense of the white man.

One thing he said that is worth repeating here, and the truth expressed worthy of reflection by newspaper men and laymen. He insisted that while he was a "yellow" man, he runs a white paper. Crime, and rape, and lascivious marital relations find no place in the Chung Sai Yat Po; that he aims to help his people live better lives, think cleaner thoughts. But, on the other hand, he was sorry to note that many white men on the coast were running "yellow" papers.

So one can easily see that the "heaven Chinese" after all can teach the white publisher a lesson in newspaper ethics.

The doctor is a brilliant man, a forceful as well as a witty speaker, a gentleman who brings luster and renown upon the profession.

That there is a tendency on the part of national advertisers to use the small weekly and country daily in preference to the metropolitan sheet, was the opinion expressed by M. C. Mogensen, publishers' representative with headquarters in San Francisco and branches in Los Angeles and in Eastern cities.

The city paper is becoming so bulky that the advertising message of the dealer is becoming lost in the mass of printed matter and fails to "get across," was the belief expressed by the speaker, and the movement toward the smaller paper has set in very decidedly, and this, by statistics, can be proven, said Mr. Mogensen. The country paper is near the heart of the reader, and has his respect, therefore the weekly paper sells not only white space but the confidence of the subscriber.

There were many other good papers, from which the writer gathered much information and stored away ideas that later he hopes to incorporate in the management of the Register.

A banquet and ball finished up the affair and brought the business meeting of the California Press to a happy and enjoyable end.
